

ABSTRACT

A method and system that allows compression software to create longer playback of computer videos and provides additional user control. A set of one or more sliced video files is generated from a script that is configured to run independently of the one or more sliced video files. The script is further configured to facilitate playback control through loading of one or more of the sliced video files. A video is generated from the one or more sliced video files and a custom loader.

N:\2792\5446\pat.app.doc